The Heads of the Confederated Nobility who were lately aſſembled at Warſaw, before they ſeparated, ſent Circular Letters to the ſeveral Palatinates, to notify to them the Treaty they had lately concluded with the Swedes; and to require all thoſe who continued ſtedfaſt in their Loyalty to the King of Poland, to come over to them in three Months, after which they ſhould not be admitted; and wrote a Letter to the Pope, to inform him of their late Proceedings, and pray him that the Biſhop of Poſen, now a Priſoner in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, for having adhered to them, may be ſet at Liberty. The King of Poland on the other hand has, by the Advice of the Council which he lately held at Grodno, publiſhed a general Amneſty to all ſuch of his Subjects in Arms againſt him, as ſhall return to their Allegiance within a certain time.

After they had paid their Duty to his Majeſty, they attended him in Proceſſion to the Chapel Royal, where the new Knights were Inſtalled. After which there was a ſplendid Entertainment in the great Hall of the Palace, there being four Tables, one for the King, over which was a Canopy; another for the Prince Royal, and the other Knights of the Order; and two more for the Ladies.
